

Why Use Essential Oils?

Essential Oils are one of the great untapped resources of the world. The concentrated essences of flowers, fruits, herbs, and plants have been used for centuries all over the world. Because the essential oils are so sweet smelling, many people suppose their value is one of charm and fragrance – but this is a mistake. Modern scientific research has proven that essential oils are potent, with remarkable medicinal properties. The essential oil of oregano, for instance, is twenty six times more powerful as an antiseptic than phenol, which is the active ingredient in many commercial cleaning materials.

Unlike chemical drugs, essential oils do not remain in the body. They leave no toxins behind. They cleanse the air by altering the structure of the molecules creating the smells, rather than masking the unwanted odors. When we are looking for alternatives to toxic products in our homes and in our lives, essential oils are a convenient, practical, and pleasant solution.

Vickie Sorensen's NATURE WORKS knows the importance of high quality in our products. We expect only the best from our suppliers. Our distilled essential oils are the first distilling, or highest quality, not the cheaper third or fourth distilling. This guarantees our customers the results they expect. Wherever possible we purchase organic oils and we strive to purchase from small suppliers (usually family owned instead of corporate conglomerates).

We also believe that education is the key to the proper use of natural therapies; therefore we offer classes and workshops on the use of essential oils and herbs. Contact our company at (435) 586-2049 to request information about classes and workshops in your area.

Good Health and God Bless.
